

Solutions for digital change in education

Audio Visual Solutions

We understand that interacting with students and capturing their full attention is key for improving their learning and development, however, can also be very challenging at times.

Our Audio Visual Solutions framework can transform your classroom using smart, digital technology. Our solutions have the ability to add interactivity, improve communication and collaboration and also make students feel they are involved and actively participating during lessons.

IT Hardware

We understand that many schools across the UK are currently facing substantial energy bills so finding the budget and resource to upgrade and replace IT equipment can be challenging. For this reason, you may be considering any way you can to reduce your outgoings.

With our IT Hardware framework we provide options to remanufacture, repair or refurbish equipment to initially help you save costs but is also a great way to reduce your carbon footprint.

Education Management Systems

At KCS Procurement Services, we know how important it is for educational leaders to have a reliable management system so they can ultimately concentrate and spend more time on student wellbeing, managing school life and improving the learning environment.

Our Education Management System framework can provide your school access to suppliers who have the most fully featured management systems on the market and can not only help improve collaboration and organisation within your school but to also support decision making, planning, monitoring and managing processes.
